Foreword

The Annals of Health Law staff is pleased to present this special edition of the Annals of Health Law with articles based on presentations from the 34th Annual Health Law Professors Conference, held in June 2011. This event, co-sponsored by the American Society for Law, Medicine & Ethics and Loyola's Beazley Institute for Health Law and Policy brought together hundreds of health law professors from around the country. The program provided professors with updates on issues at the forefront of law and medicine.

The authors for this issue presented at the conference and were asked to share their presentation in a short, less formal manner than a traditional law review article. We now share these articles with you in this more casual issue of the Annals of Health Law. Updates range from the ever-present healthcare reform to white-collar crime and informed consent to teaching techniques. We now have the opportunity to share updates on these, and many other issues, with you.

The Annals staff is honored to have been able to work with this great group of authors. We thank them all for their hard work throughout the editing process. We would like to thank the entire Annals staff for their hard work in bringing this issue to life with special thanks to Briar Siljander and Erin Lau for their assistance in editing this issue.
